Enriching our community

Skagit Valley College is dedicated to enriching our community by offering higher education options close to home. Our exceptional faculty and staff create a diverse learning environment where everyone is valued.

What sets our college apart is our unwavering commitment to student success. We are thrilled to report an 8% increase in enrollment for the fall of 2023 compared to the previous year. Our academic, workforce, basic education, and bachelor degree programs have seen strong enrollment numbers. We are particularly excited about expanding our range of bachelor degree offerings, which have garnered increased interest from the community.

In the pages of our SVC Foundation Annual Report, we celebrate our generous donors and supporters. You will read highlights of community donations, student achievements, college program improvements and faculty initiatives aimed toward the success of our students.

As you will see, your thoughtful contributions have made this year one of remarkable milestones. The support you offered has resulted in extraordinary growth of Champions of Diversity, Manufacturing Technology, Marine Technology, and many other programs.

On behalf of the SVC Board of Trustees, Foundation Board of Governors, faculty, and staff, we extend our heartfelt appreciation for joining us in our commitment to students. With your support, countless lives in Skagit, Island, and San Juan counties are being transformed for the better.

Sincerely,

Dr. Christopher Villa

SVC Celebrates Lewis Hall Mural

Honoring the contributions and resilience of Black People of the African Diaspora, and the legacy of Dr. Ernest Tutt

Skagit Valley College celebrates the addition of a new mural called, “Honoring the contributions and resilience of Black People of the African Diaspora, and the legacy of Dr. Ernest Tutt.” The mural is located on SVC’s Mount Vernon Campus, on the second floor of Lewis Hall. SVC Communication Studies instructor, Angela Logan, worked with Dr. Tutt’s widow, Beverly Havens-Tutt, artist Myron Curry, SVC’s Art Committee, Black Student Union, Office of Equity and Inclusion, and the Office of the President to bring this installation to life.

Dr. Ernest Tutt was a cherished colleague and friend throughout his time at SVC as a tenured Communication Studies Professor. He passed away in 2018. He is remembered for his kindness and devotion to the college’s Guiding Principles of Integrity, Respect, Open and Honest Communication, Collaboration, and Compassion.

When Angela was conceptualizing the mural, she was looking for a way to honor ancestors from the African Diaspora, celebrate Dr. Tutt’s legacy, and to inspire the next generation of students to evolve in their sense of self, community, and consciousness.

“Dr. Tutt was a patron of education, the arts, and grace. He believed in the practice of teaching as the way to a better tomorrow,” said Angela. “We need to build a bridge to the future because our students depend on it.”

The mural was painted by Seattle-based artist Myron Curry. Myron is known for his vibrant mural work, portraits, and design-work that is on display throughout Washington state. Much of his work focuses on Black artists, writers, and musicians.

According to Angela, “Myron’s portraits and mural work paint Black people as if we are supernatural, lifting us out of a struggle that continues to oppress us lifts us into the light.”

In November, the mural was welcomed with an artist reception, performance, and remembrance of Dr. Tutt’s indelible legacy at SVC. The Dr. Ernest Tutt Memorial Scholarship supports students in the humanities, including communication studies, ethnic studies, and sociology.

The Skagit Table

Q&A with Courtney Bourasaw
SVC CLASS OF 2015

Can you tell us a little about your history?

I am Chef Courtney Bourasaw, of The Skagit Table, voted Skagit's Best Caterer in 2023. I attended SVC from 2013-2015. After graduating, I was a personal chef and caterer for seven years before opening The Skagit Table.

How did you dream up The Skagit Table?

The Skagit Table is so many dreams rolled into one. I always wanted my own kitchen, the take-home meals came after my step-daughter's terminal cancer diagnosis. I want healthy food to be accessible to all, our youth to have exposure to better foods, and to support local farmers while doing it.

What would you share with others just starting at SVC?

You're at a huge turning point in your life, pause and take these moments in, it's exciting. Access to education is a privilege, don't take it for granted.

How did you choose to attend SVC and SVC's Culinary Program?

I was living in LA when I got pregnant. With no stability in my life, and less than a year of sobriety under my belt, my grandma, who lived on Camano, offered to care for my son while I attended college. Cooking had become an interest of mine and thank goodness, it stuck.

What was the impact of attending SVC?

I could sing the praises of my teachers all day. I came from a rough background and was barely finding myself, my teachers were so gracious. They encouraged me, supported me, and were even protective of my sobriety. SVC is where I found my passion for local sourced food, sustainability, and community. That goes beyond teaching.

Is there anyone at SVC that was particularly supportive?

Yes, and they still are. Gil Rodriguez, Suzanne Butler, Dani Cook, and Lyn Highet are all amazing cheerleaders. I received a single mother scholarship that was so beneficial in supporting me in my education.

You have been incredibly successful as a chef, and worked very hard to get where you are today. Where does that motivation come from?

My grandma gave up so much so I could have a fresh start in life, she helped care for my oldest and create a path for my success. She passed away last year; I know what I am doing makes her proud every day. My kids, who I love and adore, think "mom's kitchen" is the coolest place ever. My husband who motivates, listens, and comforts me on the hard days; he is my biggest cheerleader. And the Lord, who put me in this spot to serve my community and bless others. He has put this place on my heart and provided a way to make it happen. I am motivated by His grace and love for me.

What are your goals and dreams looking ahead?

We have exciting things in the works. We've hired a new catering manager to offer more elevated catering services and expand offerings. We are working on partnering with local schools to provide locally sourced meals to children with limited access to these foods. Our last big project is wholesaling our ready-to-eat dinners to grocers in their freezer section!

DONOR SPOTLIGHT

Nancy Chapman

A Champion of Champions

Since 2011, Nancy Chapman has been a steadfast supporter of SVC's Champions of Diversity (COD) Scholarship. The Champions of Diversity Scholarship recognizes young multicultural leaders in Skagit, Island, and San Juan counties and annually awards 10 first-year and 10 second-year scholarships.

When Nancy passed away in February 2023, she honored the SVC Foundation with a bequest in support of COD, ensuring the scholarship will continue to support students for generations. Nancy's life story and her commitment to supporting equity and diversity in our community is truly inspiring.

Throughout her life, Nancy was committed to the community wherever she lived. She cared for foster babies, became a companion to the elderly, volunteered as a reading assistant at schools, supported homeless or undocumented neighbors, and worked to protect wilderness areas.

"She was pragmatic with her giving and committed to breaking the cycle of poverty," said Karen Williams, Nancy's daughter, who described her mother as practical. "She knew that students' success stories are not always linear—that there are setbacks. She was committed to supporting those who faced obstacles to their success."

Nancy's generosity has helped SVC's Office of Student Equity and Inclusion to create wrap-around services for COD students including a dedicated advisor and financial aid contact.

First-year COD students are involved in the Cardinal Mentoring Program where they receive help with goal setting, social support, and referrals to campus services. On a quarterly basis, all COD students meet with campus leadership to learn the elements of leadership.

The scholarship provides support for historically underserved students and is a lifeline for students who are ineligible for federal financial aid. Nancy's bequest will play a vital role in ongoing support for COD students.

CHAMPIONS OF DIVERSITY SCHOLARSHIP

$30,000 Awarded to 10 First-Year Students, $10,000 Awarded to 10 Second-Year Students

In 2023, the Champions of Diversity (COD) Scholarship celebrated 24 years of scholarship for SVC students. Throughout those years, the scholarship has impacted hundreds of students from our region.

One of those students was Livy Gates. Livy was adopted out of Seattle at the age of two with her older sister. They grew up in Anacortes and Livy is a graduate of Anacortes High School. She was nominated for the COD Scholarship by a teacher at Anacortes High School, who described Livy as "optimistic, compassionate, generous, and genuine."

This year, Livy received both the COD Second-Year Scholarship and the Soroptimist International of Anacortes Marge Thomas Scholarship. While in high school she developed a passion for education and currently volunteers in a kindergarten classroom. Livy is well on her way to her Associate's in Early Childhood Education with plans to transfer to Western Washington University.

Coming Fall 2024

SVC to launch new bachelor's degree program

Bachelor of Applied Science in Advanced Manufacturing and Design

Skagit Valley College (SVC) will soon offer six bachelor's degree programs. Starting fall 2024, SVC's Manufacturing Technology program (MANF) will offer a Bachelor of Applied Science in Advanced Manufacturing and Design (BAS-AMD). The BAS-AMD is designed to meet the growing employment demands for graduates with advanced skills in manufacturing processes and knowledge of management, finance, and leadership skills.

Currently, MANF provides an educational pathway that includes multiple program on-ramps where students can earn skill-based certificates and an Associate of Arts and Science degree in Advanced Manufacturing and Design (AAS-AMD). After completing their associate's, these students can continue on and complete the BAS-AMD degree.

The BAS-AMD is a two-year, 90-credit degree for those who hold an associate's degree in fields such as manufacturing, including various industrial technology degrees, or for those students with 90+ college credits and relevant work experience. The program is designed to support working students and comprises both in-person and online coursework.

SVC has invested more than $1 million in a MANF lab renovation, which includes a new 5-axis CNC machine that was made possible thanks to a $250,000 donation from an anonymous donor to the SVC Foundation. Facilities include a MakerSpace that includes a new Wazer Waterjet (made possible thanks to WECU), 3D printers, a laser cutter, electronics, and machining equipment.

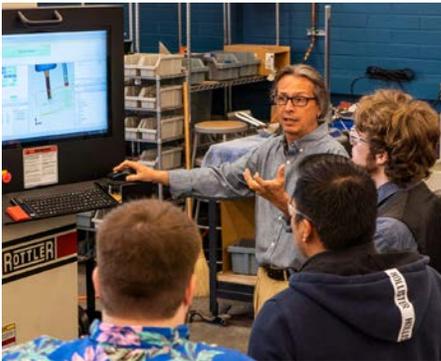

"Graduates of the program will be well-equipped to pursue a career in a wide range of local and regional industries," said Dave Knapp, SVC Associate Dean of Instruction Workforce Education Pathways. "They will learn skills to collaborate on the design, development, and implementation of manufacturing systems that are efficient, cost-effective, and produce high-quality products."

The BAS-AMD adds to the economic vitality of our region and opens the door to new job opportunities, increased earning potential, additional pathways for career advancement, personal and professional development, and increased marketability of skills.

SVC Foundation Receives WECU Education First Grant

The SVC Foundation was recently awarded a WECU Education First Grant to purchase vital equipment for SVC's Manufacturing Technology program. The Grant will be used to purchase a 4 Axis CNC ('computer numerical control') Machine upgrade and a WAZER Water-jet to enhance SVC's Manufacturing Technology Program.

The Manufacturing Technology program provides students with skills for a variety of manufacturing jobs through hands-on training in a newly renovated, working production lab. The program provides multiple pathways, including an Associate of Arts and Science degree in Advanced Manufacturing and Design (AAS-AMD). Next year, SVC will begin offering a four-year Bachelor of Applied Science in Advanced Manufacturing and Design (BAS-AMD).

SVC's Manufacturing Technology Program has a long-standing reputation for delivering industry-standard, exceptional training to students. Graduates from the program are in high demand in a variety of industries including aviation, composites, marine technology, engineering, and construction.

"Up-to-date equipment is the lifeblood of our professional-technical programs, this kind of equipment is the costliest element of workforce education and the most challenging to fund," said Darren Greeno, Interim Vice President of Academic Affairs. "WECU's Education First Grant will have a significant impact on our students, helping them earn a living wage to support themselves, their families, and meet the demands of our community," said Darren.

"We are immensely grateful to WECU and their Board of Directors for their thoughtful consideration and for the awarding of the Grant," said Kathleen Petrzelka, Director of Philanthropy at SVC Foundation.

Annual Report

2022-23

Thanks to you, Skagit Valley College Foundation celebrates another year of responding to the needs of students. Your generosity during almost 50 years of the Foundation's existence has enabled us to build endowments now valued at over $19,000,000.

To fund the immediate needs of our students for scholarships, emergency funds and childcare assistance, you have once again stepped forward with generous donations. As you will see in our report, a number of our vital instructional programs are being supported by your generous in-kind contributions.

Students at SVC are thriving as a direct result of your kindness, and we are deeply grateful for each contribution, as the Foundation continues to provide hope and opportunity to our students.

Together, we are changing lives and making a difference in our community!

Student Scholarships

$803,582 awarded to 353 students

Ask any scholarship recipient how receiving a scholarship helped them, and you will find it is always more than financial. This couldn't be more true for Jonathan Garcia-Pantoja.

"With this award, I have the sense that there are people in our community that are supporting me in my educational journey and cheering me on," said Jonathan.

SVC Foundation scholarships open doors for students to dream, Jonathan is the first member of his family to attend college and he knew the financial burden was going to be heavy.

"An SVC scholarship is a big opportunity and helps lighten the heavy cost of college from my family," said Jonathan.

Jonathan graduated from Burlington-Edison High School in 2022. After not getting into the college of his dreams, Jonathan chose to attend SVC with plans to transfer to the University of Washington where he plans to study business and accounting.

This year, Jonathan received the George W. Wallace Scholarship. The George W. Wallace Scholarship supports students studying in the field of Business Management with the intent of transferring to a four-year college/university to pursue a career in accounting.

Athletics Scholarships

$105,816 awarded to 65 student-athletes

Briley Bock – For many SVC Students, their ability to complete a college degree would not be possible without the support of scholarships. Briley Bock is one of those students. Briley is from White Swan, WA and is a descendent of the Yakama Nation and Shoshone Bannock Tribes.

Briley was an accomplished high school athlete, with plans to attend a four-year university on an athletic scholarship when a torn ACL and meniscus threatened to derail her college plans.

When SVC Basketball Coach Deb Castle reached out with a scholarship and an opportunity to rehabilitate her knee, Briley jumped at the chance to be a Cardinal. She is now a second-year, 3.7 GPA, multi-sport student-athlete, with plans to transfer to a four-year school next year for a degree in Agri-Business.

As a daughter and granddaughter of cattle ranchers, Briley is excited to continue her family legacy. She knows how hard it is for her to be away from her family's business, especially during the calving season and harsh winters of Eastern Washington.

Receiving a scholarship for the 2023-24 school year was a huge emotional relief for Briley.

"In addition to providing added financial stability for myself and my family, receiving these scholarships was a huge honor," said Briley. "The scholarships felt like a reward for the work I put in maintaining a full class load and playing two sports."

In addition to an SVC Athletic Scholarship, Briley received both the Melvin and Oscar Peterson/Henry Tenneson Memorial Scholarship and the J. George King Scholarship.

STUDENT EMERGENCY FUND

Managing the cost of higher-education is a high-wire act for most SVC students.

Eric Gallardoflores was a 4.0 student working on his transfer degree when the increasing cost in rent, groceries, and gas overwhelmed his ability to continue his education. He limited his driving to the bare minimum, held off on buying textbooks for classes, using the textbooks available to students in the library, and borrowed money from family and friends to try and make ends meet.

Thankfully, an SVC professor told Eric about the SVC Student Emergency Assistance Fund. He was relieved to experience some assistance so he could stay on track.

"I have been able to make ends meet because of the fund," said Eric. "I was going to shy away from support but realized it would not be to my benefit to do so. I encourage anyone needing assistance to apply if it means continuing your education."

SVC students are facing unprecedented pressure from cost-of-living increases. If you are interested in supporting the SVCF Student Emergency and Childcare Funds, please scan the QR code below.

STUDENT CHILDCARE ASSISTANCE FUND

$76,487 awarded to 132 students

Every parent knows how difficult it is to find safe and reliable childcare, let alone afford the skyrocketing costs. Like so many SVC students, Kimberly Thornton wouldn't be able to finish her degree without full-time childcare for her son.

Kimberly Thornton was in her last (and most demanding) quarters of SVC's nursing program when she realized she would need full-time childcare to manage the demands of her program. Kimberly and her husband don't have family nearby, so they rely on one another and childcare to balance the demands of work, school, and life.

Thanks to SVC's Childcare Assistance Fund, Kimberly was able to enroll her son in full-time pre-k so she could complete her degree.

"Any financial assistance for myself and my family helps get me through school," said Kimberly. "Childcare is very expensive, and without help, it is nearly impossible to finish my degree."

Thanks to donor support, Kimberly completed her nursing degree in 2023!

Opportunity for Excellence

Passion and personal connection drive generosity. That is the theme of the 35-year relationship between Dr. Brinton Sprague and SVC's Marine Technology program.

In 1988, Dr. Sprague became Dean of Whidbey Island Campus and soon selected Mike Swietzer as the lead faculty member of the Marine Technology program. Together, they built the program with strong student enrollment and excellent relationships with the local marine industry. The growth has been sustained under the guidance of current instructor, Mike Beemer.

Initially, the fledgling Marine Technology program was based at a cramped and isolated building outside Oak Harbor. In 2010, the program moved into the beautiful Marine Technology Center in Anacortes, which boasts instructional classrooms and mechanical and lab space.

After retiring from SVC, Dr. Sprague served both Cascadia Community College and Peninsula College as interim president. Now fully retired, his love for SVC and Marine Technology continues.

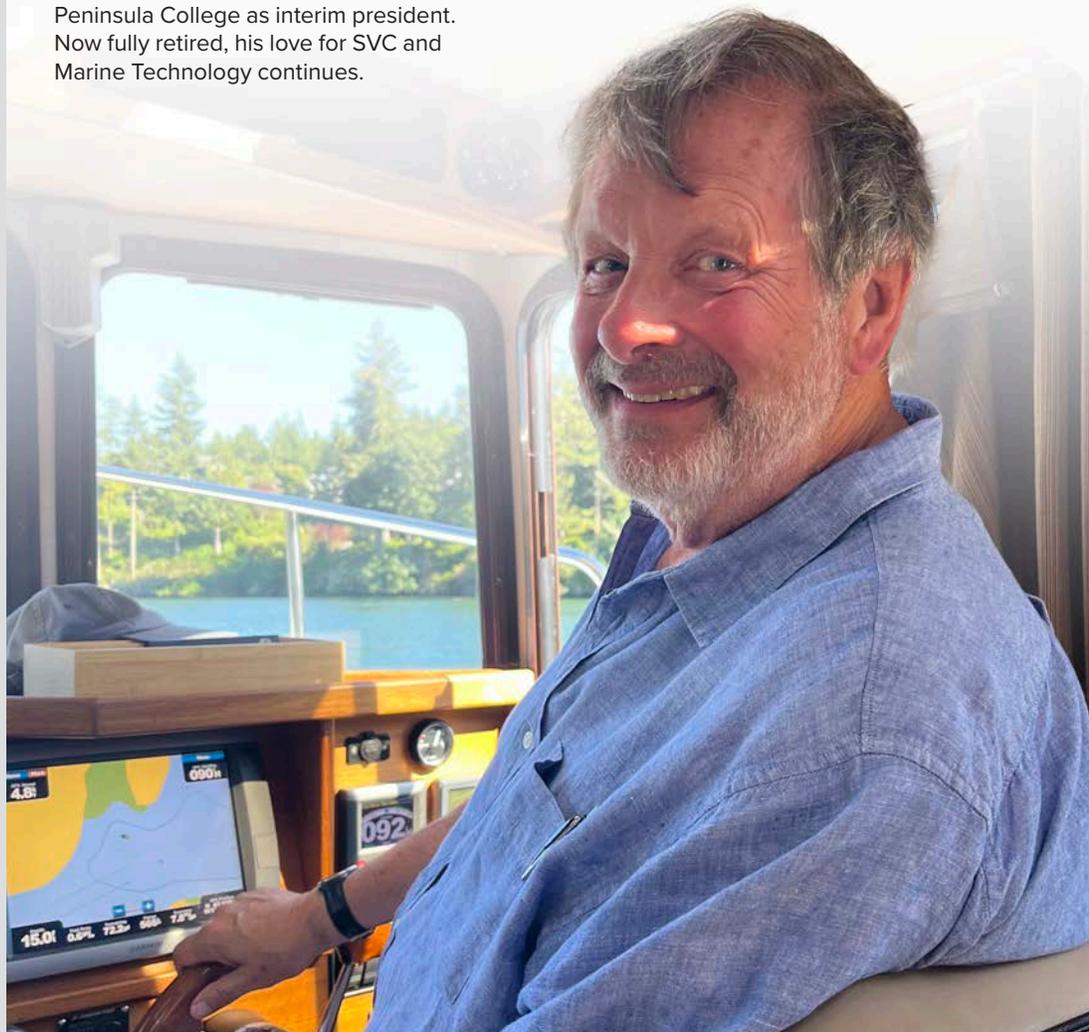

This summer, Dr. Sprague donated the Lady M, a 25' Ranger Tug powerboat, valued at $62,500, to the program for student hands-on training. Mike welcomed the new boat.

"Students will spend the next few months learning about and refurbishing the boat," said Mike. "When done, the boat will be auctioned to the public to provide vital funding for program improvements."

"This pleases me so much," Dr. Sprague commented. "I have always had a soft spot for the Marine Tech program. I know they will make the most of the contribution."

Marine Technology graduates are continuing on to SVC's Bachelor of Applied Science in Management, (Management, BAS).

The Management, BAS is for students interested in management with a professional-technical associate degree in programs such as Marine Technology.

Exceptional Faculty Awards

Last year: $21,332 awarded to eight SVC Faculty

Exceptional Faculty Awards are granted to faculty members who engage in noteworthy activities that lead to program enhancements at SVC. Awards are also made for distinguished accomplishments, recognized by the college or professional community at large. Last year's Exceptional Faculty Awards went to:

Farhana Loonat, Ph.D. (Political Science and Philosophy) for her exceptional service as a teacher and colleague, and to acknowledge her work as a SOAS University of London Contemporary Woman Philosopher and TEDx Talk on Racism in Higher Education.

Nguyen Dao, Ph.D., Daniel Peña, M.A., and Brienne Boesiger (English Language Acquisition) for transforming ELA Program and Learning Outcomes through Lesson Study model with a focus on learning outcomes and connection with upper-level ELA courses.

Lin Boydston and Laura Wisman (Math) for revising BEdA Math Pathways and building reading apprenticeship practices into the curriculum that help emerging math scholars complete their high school credentials, and successfully complete college math requirements for a variety of degrees.

Mariko Thomas, Ph.D., and Brittany Knutson, Ph.D. (Communication Studies) for the development of a library resource guide to assist transitions into equity designated and equity forward coursework and pedagogy, and the formulation of a range of multi-level communication focused lesson plans and language for departmental teaching success.

Your generosity CHANGES LIVES!

Here's how YOU can benefit SVC students in the year to come:

SCHOLARSHIPS

Scholarships make college possible. Establish a named scholarship, reflecting what you care about most, or contribute to an existing one. You can also make scholarships in memory or in honor of a loved one.

CHILDCARE FUNDS

For the 1,500+ students with children or dependents, access to safe, affordable childcare is the difference that enables them to attend SVC.

OPPORTUNITY FOR EXCELLENCE

Fund vital equipment and technology for SVC programs; assuring students engage in high-quality, professional, industry, or scholarly activities in and beyond the classroom.

EMERGENCY FUNDS

When unanticipated expenses occur that could force a student to drop out of school, emergency assistance funds help students bridge the gap.

AREA OF GREATEST NEED

Help the SVC Foundation remain nimble as student needs change. Support the area of greatest need and support all the programs listed above.

Join your community and support
SVC students today.
